The founders of New Haven avowed the leading purpose of their settlement here to be, to establish a state whose design was religion. In connection with this purpose, and to furnish the pillars of such a state, they contemplated a liberally-educated class who should be leaders and guides in religious and secular affairs. And in order to provide such a class they planned, as their records repeatedly express it, for the training up of youth, that, through the blessing of God, they might be fitted for publique service in church and commonweale. Accordingly, when the settlers left Boston in 1638, taking with them a pastor and a soldier, they also took, as equally essential, a high-grade professional schoolmaster. Ezekiel Cheever, who accompanied the party, was then in his 24th year. He had been a teacher in Boston, and...

Reviews

This book is definitely not straightforward to get started on studying but extremely exciting to read. It is really simplistic but shocks in the 50 percent of the ebook. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.
