

Health Services Utilization in Urban India

By C.A.K. Yesudian

Mittal Publications, New Delhi, 1988. N.A. Book Condition: New. Xii+322pp The book highlights the role of social inequality in the utilisation of health services. The differential socio-economic status and the life styles emerging out of it create differential health status among different social classes. Further, their differential educational achievements produce differential knowledge of health service needs. All these factors mould the utilisation patterns of health services of different social classes. The lower social classes are found to have greater health needs, but they are in a disadvantageous position to consume adequate health services. The author suggests an integrated development programme for the poor to narrow down social inequality as well as to reduce the health needs of the poor. At the same time a comprehensive health care scheme is conceived to provide adequate quantity of health services to the poor.

READ ONLINE

[5.72 MB]

Reviews

Very beneficial to all category of folks. We have study and that i am sure that i will planning to go through yet again again in the future. Its been printed in an extremely straightforward way in fact it is just soon after i finished reading this pdf where actually changed me, alter the way i really believe.

-- Emmett Mann

Comprehensive information! Its this sort of great go through. It really is rally interesting through studying time. I am just quickly can get a satisfaction of looking at a created pdf.

-- Alexandra Weissnat